

SECTION C: JARS, 'COARSE WARES'

While some of the forms in Section B included HM examples, they were only coarser versions of forms commonly well made, well finished and often burnished. The C forms are of more basic shapes and manufacture altogether, intended for kitchens rather than tables or burials. They often occur in fabrics other than grog, even in the area where grog is invariable for all the finer forms. Here only grog-tempered vessels are included, except in rare instances.

The section is made up of the following:

- C1-1 substantially whole bead-rimmed jars.
- C1-2 rims of rounded jars with bead rims.
- C1-3 wide-rimmed straight-sided jars with bead rims.
- C1-4 bead-rims with prominent internal rim thickening.
- C2-1 large plain everted-rim jars, substantially complete.
- C2-2 small plain everted-rim jars, substantially complete.
- C2-3 plain everted-rim jars, rims only.
- C3 plain jars with no true external rim, but usually internal thickening.
- C4 round-shouldered jars, often with some decoration on shoulder, with inset below slightly everted or bead rim.
- C5-1 lid-seated jars, plain.
- C5-2 lid-seated jars with slashed rim.
- C5-3 globular jars with dished rims and usually rilling around girth.
- C6-1 storage jars, ordinary.
- C6-2 globular romanised storage jars with slashed shoulder.
- C7-1 rilled jars, ordinary, with everted rims.
- C7-2 rilled jars, miniatures.
- C7-3 rilled jars, very wide-mouthed, often bead rims.
- C7-4 wide-mouthed rilled bowls, everted rims.
- C8-1 smallish jars with shoulder and everted rim, and rilled, combed, or scraped below stabbing on shoulder.
- C8-2 C3 forms with stabbing on shoulder.
